WINTER CARNIVAL

Although the Winter Carnival is budgeted for less than twenty thousand dollars, the real cost is in the neighbourhood of a quarter of a million dollars. Mount Royal Night, for example, is only budgeted for $950, but this figure excludes the cost of the time and men that the army donates and the free use of the Chalet.

The carnival for this year will consist of five events: Mount Royal Night, the Laurentian Excursion, Forum Night, the Carnival Revue, and the Carnival Ball. Mount Royal night will be on Thursday, Feb. 17. It will include the official opening, torchlight parade, skating, tobogganing, sleigh rides, fireworks, and dancing and square dancing.

On Friday there is the Laurentian excursion to the international ski meet. This meet will include the international downhill, cross-country, slalom, and jumping. There will be special trains to Mont Gabriel which will return in plenty of time for the Forum festivities.

The ice festival at the Forum on Friday night will get underway with the Redmen playing host to the University of Toronto. There will be a skating show featuring noted figure skaters and the Red & White skating chorus. The evening will be highlighted by Mayor Drapeau crowning the carnival queen.

The Carnival Revue will be on Saturday afternoon. Two shows presenting selections from the musical revues of several universities will be held. The weekend will be highlighted on Saturday evening by the Carnival Ball.

INTERNATIONAL SHOW TO RUN FOUR DAYS

Over a hundred people, representing a dozen countries, will open a song and dance festival in Moyse Hall tomorrow night that may even raise the shade of James McGill, as the third annual Flying Carpet opens at 8.30 pm. Among a cast drawn from four continents, a special attraction will be one of the world's leading exponents of Balinese dancing, who has consented to come down from Ottawa for four days to take part in the show.

Balinese Dancing

Mr. Sukari first gained fame in the newly formed Indonesian Republic as one of the nations leading exponents of the world-famous traditional Balinese dancing. Since that time he has turned his hand to film production, and has further added to his fame by winning one of the prizes at the International Film Festival in Venice. At the present time he is spending a four month period of study with the National Film Board in Ottawa under the aegis of the Colombo Plan. At the present time he is producing a film in the Lake St. Jean region, and it is from this duty that he is taking a four day leave of absence to take part in the Flying Carpet.

Bretones Perform

Another act for the show has been drawn from the Montreal Festivals folk music show last summer. This troupe, consisting of eighteen Bretones, open their number with a series of marches played by a bagpipe and drum band. Then after a French folk-song, they perform a number of Breton peasant dances to the music of the pipes.

In an otherwise all-new show, the two highlights of last year's Carpet are being staged again as the finales of the two acts. These two numbers are being presented by the Ukrainian Club and by the Nisei Campus Club. The latter number has been augmented by two new performers who are expected to make a great impression.

Europe Represented

The European continent is also represented in the show, by a group of Finnish singers and dancers, by a Spanish group, and by a Hungarian troubador, all of whom have appeared on television. The Dominions are featured this year for the first time, with two acts from Canada, one from Australia and two from Ceylan.

A cross-section of Israeli music and dancing is being presented by IZFA in which singers, dancers and instrumentalists are taking part.

Faculty Of Arts And Science Change Of Course — Second Term

The change of course period for the second term will extend from January 13th to January 22nd (noon). During this period students in the Faculty of Arts and Science may change their registration in second term courses only so that they may drop a second term course for which they registered originally and replace it by another approved second term course.

In order to be properly registered the student must effect this change by completing the official change of course form available in the Assistant Dean's Office. These forms (three in number) must be completed and turned in by the student who should call back within three days to receive his copy which will be signed if the change is approved. Merely turning in the forms does not constitute authority for the change and it is the student's responsibility to ascertain that the change has been approved.

Positively no changes will be considered after this deadline date of January 22nd.

Office of the Assistant Dean.

WEEK LONG MISSION TO BEGIN ON MONDAY

An extensive, week-long Christian Mission in the university, designated to present Christianity as a faith for living, will open on the campus Monday.

Canon Charles E. Raven, one-time vice-chancellor of Cambridge University and chaplain to the Queen, is flying from England to lead the mission. One assistant missionary, Dr. Roger Pilkington, and five others will come from Toronto.

The five-day mission, first of its scope to be held at McGill, will culminate six months of active preparation by a joint student-faculty committee. The sponsors are Protestant religious organizations on the campus.

Organizers describe the mission as "a kind of campus-wide bull session", given direction by a planning committee and with leading scholars on hand to discuss and answer questions.

Canon Raven, a natural scientist as well as a theologian, will keynote the mission with five addresses, to be given each day from Monday to Friday at 5 pm in Moyse Hall. The general theme will be "Christ and the Modern Opportunity." Every evening a panel discussion at the Union, from 8 to 9 pm, will take up questions raised by the chief missionary's 5 o'clock addresses.

On each day from Tuesday to Friday assistant missionaries will give noon hour talks in seven campus buildings. They will lead "bull sessions" in five residences every evening.

The honorary chairman of the mission is the principal and vice-chancellor, Dr. F. Cyril James, and the chairman is Dr. R. B. Y. Scott, of the Faculty of Divinity.

Dr. Scott told The Daily that the mission began more than a year ago on the initiative of a group of students, growing out of a conviction that "the claims of Christianity as a faith for living in the kind of world that students know should be presented by some one who knows students."

It was after Canon Raven had accepted an invitation to come, that faculty members were invited to participate. Staff members now on the committee include Rev. E. Clifford Knowles, Dr. R. V. V. Nichols, Prof. Gerald LeDain, Prof. G. A. Wallace, Dr. Bruce Ross, Prof. Kenneth Byrd and Dr. C. P. Martin.

FOR FREE DISCUSSION

Religion — or, more specifically, Christianity — will be a big topic on the campus next week.

It would be judicious at this early juncture to point out that when we speak of religion, using the general term, we almost always mean Christianity, one of the many specific divisions of that term, for this is a Christian country. By this we mean that most of the people in Canada, when confronted by a space on an application blank labelled "religion" will fill in the name of one of the many churches calling themselves Christian.

Christianity, then, will be a big topic on the campus next week.

Monday afternoon Canon Charles E. Raven, who will be known to many locally from his 1952 visit to McGill when he was awarded an honorary degree, will give the first of five public lectures on the general topic, "Christ and the Modern Opportunity." Around these lectures a committee made up of representatives of the Faculty of Divinity and of seven campus religious clubs (Protestant) has arranged a genuinely imposing array of talks, panels and discussions extending over a five-day period.

The purpose of this campus religious (Christian) mission is "to present in national and debatable terms the basis of Christian thought in the world today."

There is no understating the organization behind the project, or the merits of Canon Raven as missionary, for he is an outstanding scientific and theological scholar who has devoted his life to reconciling his two long-unreconciled fields of interest.

The underlying motive of the mission is a laudable one; man, with his ever-growing power to destroy himself, is generally felt to "need something" — some inner awareness which will guide him through his self-imposed troubles. The people behind the mission feel sincerely that Christianity supplies this inner awareness, and it is to their credit that they are attempting to bring their belief to the students by such sensible means; the days of gospel-waving preachers are over as far as the mission committee is concerned.

We welcome the mission, as we would welcome any move by thoughtful people to present anything they feel would advance the state of the world; we will listen to the mission's talks and ponder their meaning; yes, we will approach the mission with open minds, BUT . . .

We would like to have our say about a few things.

We would like to say this: we would hand out an equal welcome to an anti-Christian or any other type of mission, should it be handled by people of similar calibre to those behind the forthcoming Christian mission. Should a man get up and defy the church (in general) as "this school for hypocrites and university of ignorance," as did one highly reputed writer, we would welcome that man — IF we had cause to believe he had come by his views through honest thought. Otherwise we should respect him no more than we respect the numbers of unthinking "Christians" who come to us, and from whom sincere Christians like Canon Raven are such welcome relief.

We would, in short, approach with open minds any sincerely thought out belief that sought to advance mankind, no matter how "blasphemous" it may seem to the "orthodox," or majority; so too would many of the mission committee; but would society in general?

We doubt it.

Look at what happened recently in England when the BBC presented a talk by a psychologist who happened to put forward the view that Christianity was a set of myths and legends. The editorial uproar against the presentation of non-Christian views was ferocious.

Look at what has occasionally happened to North American schoolteachers so unfortunate as to be found out to be atheists.

The off-campus public will welcome the mission, since it puts forth a Christian viewpoint; but what would be the public reaction if a number of well-known McGill people banded together on a similar scale to import a famous attacker of Christianity, even though his opinions be sensibly presented and his underlying motive be the same? The reaction would, we believe, be violent.

We suspect that while we have the freedom to hold any religion (Christian) that we please, we do not yet have the freedom to publicly hold none at all.

Until then, we have no freedom at all. D.P.

Letters to the Editor

Mission Committee Asks For Help

Dear Sir:

I should like to draw attention to the Christian Mission which will take place in McGill during the week of January 24-30. Canon

Charles Raven, who is Chaplain to the Queen, and ranks as a distinguished scientist and theologian, will come from Cambridge University to lead the mission. The purpose is to present the meaning and claims of the Christian message in terms which are relevant to the university community. Canon Raven will be assisted by other missionaries, among whom is Dr. Roger Pilkington, a geneticist and Christian thinker, also from England.

The planning and work for this mission are almost completed. There remain, however, several important jobs for which help will be required from the student body. The chief of these is the distribution of 2,500 brochures containing the details of the mission and 4,000 schedules indicating the various meetings. The plan is to distribute these announcements on Thursday and Friday of this week. To accomplish this successfully we shall need considerable assistance.

If there are students, of any persuasion, who feel the importance of this mission and want to help in this work, they should leave their names, faculty, and phone number in the Chaplain's office in the Arts Building. Such help will be deeply appreciated.

Nino Gualtieri,
For the Raven
Mission Committee.

Carry Me Back To Old Ohio

By Ivan Aron

(Mr. Aron, an ex-McGillian and an ex-Dailyite, continues his account of Ohio State's posh Union facilities.)

McGill can have a new Union equal to that at Ohio State, though scaled down in size. How this can be done will be seen in the last article of this series.

Let us continue our tour of the Ohio Union.

Comfortable Lounge

Above the bowling-alley, billiards and game-room floor, and the cafeteria, soda-fountain and ball-rooms floor, is found the main lounge. Comfortably furnished in the modern style which characterizes the whole building, the lounge has a large expanse of window, really a wall of glass, giving one of the finest views of the campus.

Handy Terrace

Outside the window is a terrace for fine-weather use. This is welcome as the building air-conditioning. Part of the terrace floor is polished stone which makes a good dancing surface. Loudspeakers furnish music.

The lounge is designed for easy hanging of pictures, and there is a glass display case. Showings change frequently. The hallways provide extra exhibition space.

Music Lounge

On the same floor is the music lounge. The room, about thirty feet square, has a high fidelity system feeding two wall loudspeakers. Classical recordings are played by request. Records may also be played in the five private listening booths. The budget calls for more than 100 new L.P.'s to be added to the collection annually.

Next to the music lounge is a browsing library. Books for recreational reading, current magazines and newspapers are found here. No textbooks are allowed. There is study elsewhere in the building.

Small Theater

On this floor there is a conference theater. It is designed for meetings and movies, and has a small stage for skits. It does not duplicate other university stage facilities.

The top floor contains offices of student organizations and meeting rooms. There is also a special small dining room serving fancy meals, suitable for entertaining visitors or for a special date.

A THOUGHT FOR THE NIGHT

In the cone of the searchlight behind the coalscuttle, ollave, holy-eyed, the bearded figure of Manannan MacLir broods, chin on knees. He rises slowly. A cold seawind blows from his druid mantle. About his head writhe eels and elvers. He is encrusted with weeds and shells. His right hand holds a bicycle pump. His left hand grasps a huge crayfish by its two talons.

SPORTS

Stu Smith
Reporters: Bob Smol-

Mr. Johnny Metras, Director of Athletics and head football coach at the University of Western Ontario, would undoubtedly cause quite a rumpus should he decide to apply for the job of Athletic Director at McGill University. Metras has made it plain that he has been approached by McGill Alumni and his application will not be without strong support. However, he thinks it unlikely that he will accept the post if he were not also offered the position of head Redmen coach. And here is where the snag comes in.

One year at the helm of the Redmen is by no means a fair test of Larry Sullivan's coaching prowess, especially considering the circumstances under which he was forced to work. The Metras opposition feel that Sullivan must be given another chance.

Metras, on the other hand, would be of no use to McGill strictly as an administrator, which technically is what the Director's position requires. If he is wanted, it is because of his coaching talents. The question boils down to just how good is Johnny Metras, and is McGill ready and willing to step into football in a big way at this time?

This probably will be the only opportunity that McGill will ever have to procure Metras' services. The arguments will undoubtedly be loud and hot if the question ever arises, that is.

On the local scene, Howie Ryan, gymnastics coach, has put in a request to the Students Athletic Council that McGill take the initiative in trying to bring gymnastics back to the intercollegiate level. The collegiate competition in the sport was discontinued some years back because of lack of interest among the Universities. It was continued on the intramural level at McGill since.

Ryan explained that it is hard to hold the interest of gymnasts when there is no collegiate competition. He went on to say that he has a large group of boys turning out each year who are eager to continue if intercollegiate meets can be reinstated.

It seems that the City of Montreal has been discussing the possibility of enlarging Molson Stadium by some 5-6000 seats at its own expense, the motive being that it will then be large enough to hold the Grey Cup playoff in. Oh yes, construction on the Winter Stadium is scheduled to start in February.

PUCKSTERS RELYING ON TEAMWORK AND GOALIE

Led by the only Chinese goaltender in intercollegiate hockey competition who wears glasses, the McGill Redmen last week displayed the teamwork that has been lacking in years gone by as they trounced the defending champion Laval squad 6-2 and soundly whipped their perennial enemies from University of Montreal, 6-1.

Missing also since the days of the great Jack Gelineau, the Red and Whites have finally found a goaltender. Bespectacled Bernie Wong withstood a bold U of M drive and pulled off circus catches as he defended the McGill cage against the onslaught of Bernie Quesnel and the rest of the Fighting Frenchmen. The short, slim netminder made like a first baseman between the pipes on numerous occasions, and rumour has it that a Brooklyn Dodger scout was up with the crowd (?) with the idea of using Wong at the initial sack for the Bums shifting Hodges behind the plate to catch instead of Campanella who has a bad hand. This is only a rumour, though!

Paced by the sterling play of all-star Ron Robertson, the McGill defense put up a stone wall against the U of M forwards. Johnny Henderson, who is also the team captain, scored two beautiful goals and worked tremendously with Robertson and Paul Dingle and occasionally Herb English to defend the Redmen nets. English, who 'doubles' as a forward and defenseman, also contributed to the McGill effort with a brace of goals.

Up front, the big news was Pete Constable who notched a couple of goals to round out the Red and White scoring. Dickie Baltzan, Gordie Currie, Pete Jotkus and Jack McMullan also came through with standout performances and gave notice to all and sundry that the Redmen are a force to be reckoned with along the intercollegiate ice lanes this winter.

The big stumbling-block on the road to success for the Redmen is the tremendous showing of the Varsity Blues to date. The Blues opened the McGill season by beating the locals 9-1, and since then won by convincing scores in all their games. Last week the Blues handed Laval a 12-7 lacing, keeping the Quebecers' winless streak alive.

The Redmen themselves are on a five game winning streak after taking a three-game series in Boston over the Christmas holidays. Two more exhibition games are on tap for the Red and White this weekend as they tackle Loyola on Friday and journey down to Canton, N. Y. for a game with St. Lawrence University the next night.

The text of the resolution is as follows: Whereas experience has shown that peace with the Communist world can be best achieved through strength;

Whereas the strength of the Western World can be best achieved through: (a) unity of aims and purposes amongst nations. (b) common preparations of the means to resist aggression;

Whereas progress in any field of human enterprise is only possible when there is at least a minimum amount of security;

Whereas signs of disunity amongst the Western nations make some form of agreement essential to the security of these nations;
